“ Hey Ang, i miss you already! I’m so grateful for all the time we spent together since you got sick and for all the good years and great memories. We started out as co-workers but it grew over the years to so much more! We shared years of stories about our Italian upbringing, the old neighborhood, country music, horses, birds, racing and dare I say “Mo stories”. Not to mention weekly recaps of the Voice, Chicago PD, Fire and Med, Dancing with the stars, the Bachelorette and Bachelor and the list goes on and on. Now I know you’re looking down and laughing or more likely “cussing me out” &#x1f602; One thing I know for sure is that we loved each other and when I left your hospital room Saturday afternoon, our last words to each other were “I love You” For that, I will be forever grateful. I miss you dear friend! Thanks for the memories &#x1f1ee;&#x1f1f9;❤️

“ Dear Ang...I am so sad you had to leave us. We shared a common bond. I loved your sharing movies with me. Always a giving gal...in more ways than one...emotional feelings were part of your personality...you were a strong lady. I will always wish I had been more of a help to you. Remembering our days at Central States and all the effort you put into the parties for us all. My retirement party was arranged by you too and it was wonderful. I always felt there was nothing you wouldn’t do for us if needed. I hope in heaven you are meeting my Ma she would love to see you. She also was a caring individual. Be in peace Angeline. Love, Lo

“ Oh, Melody! I just learned of Angie’s passing, and I am heartbroken. Had I known earlier, I would have come for the services. I had so much fun with Angie back in our horse show days. We spent all of our time together laughing! I will remember her that way, and Kenny, too. God bless, Mel.
